Bob -

We have not received many WY well completion notifications, but here is one.

As you are probably aware, if any State agency requires a similar notification, an operator does not need to also send the EPA regional office such.

Here's the spiel I send when asked:

Beginning on October 15, 2012, gas well completion notification provisions under the agency's April 2012 oil and gas standards take effect.

§ 60.5420 What are my notification, reporting, and recordkeeping requirements?

(a)(2)(i) If you own or operate a gas well affected facility, you must submit a notification to the Administrator no later than 2 days prior to the commencement of each well completion operation listing the anticipated date of the well completion operation. The notification shall include:

- contact information for the owner or operator;
- the API well number,
- the latitude and longitude coordinates for each well in decimal degrees to an accuracy and precision of five (5) decimals of a degree using the North American Datum of 1983; and
- the planned date of the beginning of flowback.

You may submit the notification in writing or in electronic format to R8wellcompletion@epa.gov (or R_wellcompletions@epa.gov for any other Regions in which you may have operations). If you send us email notifications, could you please put, in the Subject line, the State name and, if relevant, the Tribal lands in which the wells your are notifying us about reside.

Note that 60.5420(a)(2)(ii) says ... If you are subject to state regulations that require advance notification of well completions and you have met those notification requirements, then you are considered to have met the advance notification requirements of paragraph (a)(2)(i) of this section. What this means is:

Companies can meet this provision by complying with state advance notification requirements (e.g. in your case with Utah Division of Oil, Gas and Mining or perhaps UDEQ). If a state does not have an advance notification requirement, companies must inform EPA no later than two days before the well completion using hydraulic fracturing begins. Companies may submit this notification electronically or in writing. EPA finalized this common-sense approach after receiving important feedback from industry, states, and others during the 100-day open and transparent public comment period. Companies have until 2015 to meet the green completion requirements in the final rule.

Notifying permitting authorities is a routine and well-established step under the Clean Air Act. Notification provisions were included in both the agency's July 2011 proposal and April 2012 final rule, which allows continued, responsible growth in U.S. oil and natural gas production.

Cheers,
Cindy
